I am a PhD student in the Linguistics Department at the University of California, Berkeley.

My research centers on phonology and its interfaces with morphology and syntax. My other interests include syntax, semantics, language documentation, language revitalization, logic, and psycholinguistics.

One empirical focus of my work is A'ingae (or Cofán, ISO 639-3: con), an Amazonian language isolate spoken in northeast Ecuador and southern Colombia.

In this document, my research projects are listed in vague order of recent, active interest. See curriculum vitae for publications by type and in chronological order.

A'INGAE (OR COFÁN)

METRICAL PHONOLOGY AND ITS INTERFACES

I analyze stress assignment in A'ingae (or Cofán, ISO 639-3: con), an Amazonian isolate spoken by ca. 1,500 Cofán people in northeast Ecuador and southern Colombia. I argue that A'ingae glottalization is a facultative feature of the metrical foot. I provide a detailed description of the language's rich inflectional paradigm. I demonstrate that the distribution of stress and glottalization depends on complex facts of morphosyntax.

RATIONALE AND APPREHENSIONAL SEMANTICS IN A TYPOLOGICAL PERSPECTIVE

I analyze the semantics of A'ingae rationale clauses and apprehensional adjuncts in collaboration with Scott AnderBois. We describe different uses of the A'ingae apprehensional morpheme -sa'ne APPR and put forth a formal proposal which elucidates language-internal asymmetries and typological trends within the domains of rationale and precautioning clauses.

LANGUAGE DOCUMENTATION

I carried out language documentation in the A'ingae-speaking communities of Dureno and Sinangoé, Sucumbíos, Ecuador. I deposited over 14 hours of traditional and contemporary oral narratives. I contributed to the development of LingView, a web interface for viewing multimedia language materials.

THE LEFT PERIPHERY

I argue that A'ingae second-position clitics are matrix clausal C-heads. Thus, I show that—despite its apparent non-configurationality—A'ingae has a structured left periphery.

NOMINAL CLASSIFIERS

I describe and analyze A'ingae size and shape classifiers. I observe a new fractured shape morpheme -fu'chu SH.FRC. I show that A'ingae classifiers can introduce subordinate clauses, if the classifier matches the shape of the subordinate clause's head and the head is sufficiently agent-like.

PARAGUAYAN GUARANÍ AND FREE AFFIX ORDER

I describe and analyze the prosodic structure of the verb in Paraguayan Guaraní (Tupian, ISO 639-3: gug). I show that the Paraguayan Guaraní (partially free) suffix order is determined by phonological subcategorization and prosodic well-formedness. I propose that the phenomenon of free affix order is not unified, but driven by either phonology or morphology, giving rise to two distinct typological profiles.

PIED-PIPING BY CYCLIC AGREE

I argue that pied-piping is a consequence of WH-feature percolation, formalized within Béjar and Rezac's (2009) model of Cyclic Agree. I capture cross-linguistic variation with respect to pied-piping and WH-inversion. I account for clausal pied-piping in Basque (isolate, ISO 639-3: eus).

LOGIC IN SPONTANEOUS LANGUAGE COMPREHENSION

In a collaborative project with Roman Feiman, I designed and implemented a novel experimental paradigm for detecting processing difficulty signatures in self-paced reading tasks. We demonstrate that spontaneous natural language comprehension is normatively accurate.

YUCATEC MAYA SYNTAX IN SIGN-BASED CONSTRUCTION GRAMMAR

I formalize a syntactic fragment of Yucatec Maya (Mayan, ISO 639-3: yua) in Sign-Based Construction Grammar and argue against a nominalization analysis of the language's intransitive subjunctive control.

DEFINITENESS AND WORD ORDER IN POLISH

I argue that ten DEF in Polish (Slavic, ISO 639-3: pol) is a definite determiner whose anaphoric uses are governed by word order and disambiguation. I demonstrate that the determiner ten DEF has a typologically novel range of functions.
